(17) Weighted Words
March 1 - June 10

Based on a selection of works from the Zabludowicz Collection and a loaned archive of historical audio recordings, the show "Weighted Words", curated by Ellen Mara De Wachter, attempts to investigate the relationship between language and art, and the new forms of expression that the latter creates to address loaded topics in the societal and political sphere. Racism in the United States, colonialism in Africa, warfare, and the role of rhetoric in the evolution of international affairs over the course of the 20th century will be among the issues tackled by the show, which tries to stimulate ideas through the impact produced by the viewer's encounter with the work of the participating artists.
